The performance data shown represents past performance. Past performance is not a guarantee of future results. The investment return and the principal value of an investment will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. From time to time the advisor has waived fees or reimbursed expenses, which may have resulted in higher returns.

The AMG Yacktman Fund (the Fund) declined slightly in the third quarter, decreasing -0.28% compared to the S&P 500[®] Index's 1.7% increase and the Russell 1000[®] Value Index, which rose 1.36%. For the first nine months of 2019 the Fund has lagged market returns, but, looking back over the last year, the Fund has outperformed both of its benchmarks, increasing 6.31% compared to 4.25% for the S&P 500[®] Index and 4.00% for the Russell 1000[®] Value Index.

We continued to rebalance the portfolio in the third quarter, reducing successful investments like Procter & Gamble (P&G) and PepsiCo, and building up newer holdings in out-of-favor stocks such as News Corp and Macy's Inc. (Macy's). One of Yacktman's core beliefs is "it is almost all about the price," and at times like today it is important to actively reallocate from investments that have worked exceptionally well to those that we think have been unfairly left behind and may possess much better long-term risk/reward due to lower valuations.

Consumer staples were top performers in the third quarter with especially strong returns from P&G, Coca-Cola, and PepsiCo. We continue to be pleased with our investments in P&G, Coca-Cola, and PepsiCo; however, the higher valuations led us to reduce our weighting in consumer staples shares during the third quarter. Since reaching a low in early May of last year, P&G's shares have appreciated more than 75% while the S&P 500[®] Index has risen slightly more than 10%. This is a remarkable change in valuation for a stable company even considering the better business execution the company has delivered in recent quarters. We have reduced the position from 9% to start the year to less than a 5% weighting as of the end of the third quarter.

Detractors

Macy's, a new holding this year for the Fund, declined during the quarter due to challenging business results and general weakness among many retail stocks. Macy's currently trades at 5-6 times this year's earnings and possesses an extremely valuable portfolio of real estate. We are very aware of the challenges retailers face today as well as the difficulty some of Macy's competitors have had realizing value from properties. As value investors, we are willing to embrace difficult-looking situations if we think the attributes of an individual company warrant the investment. In recent years, this served us well in media, as 21st Century Fox delivered exceptional returns while many peers like CBS, Viacom, Discovery, and AMC struggled.

Anthem's stock underperformed during the quarter due to general weakness among health care insurance stocks. We think Anthem is attractively priced at current levels.

Bolloré's shares were weaker during the quarter and, in our opinion, continue to represent exceptional value. We increased our weighting in Bolloré during the quarter and have significantly added to our position in 2019.

Conclusion

The third quarter was fairly uneventful both for the Fund and the benchmarks. During the quarter, we continued to shift the portfolio to what we believe will be a better risk/reward position over time by increasing our weighting in new holdings and reducing our allocations to positions that have become more expensive. We will continue to work hard to be objective, patient, and disciplined as we manage the AMG Yacktman Fund.

The Fund is subject to the risks associated with investments in debt securities, such as default risk and fluctuations in the perception of the debtor's ability to pay its creditors. Changing interest rates may adversely affect the value of an investment. An increase in interest rates typically causes the value of bonds and other fixed income securities to fall.

High-yield bonds (also known as "junk bonds") are subject to additional risks such as the risk of default.

Investments in international securities are subject to certain risks of overseas investing including currency fluctuations and changes in political and economic conditions, which could result in significant market fluctuations. These risks are magnified in emerging markets.

The Fund is subject to risks associated with investments in mid-capitalization companies such as greater price volatility, lower trading volume, and less liquidity than the stocks of larger, more established companies.

The Fund is subject to risks associated with investments in small-capitalization companies, such as erratic earnings patterns, competitive conditions, limited earnings history, and a reliance on one or a limited number of products.

Companies that are in similar businesses may be similarly affected by particular economic or market events; to the extent the Fund has substantial holdings within a particular sector, the risks associated with that sector increase.

The Fund invests in value stocks, which may perform differently from the market as a whole and may be undervalued by the market for a long period of time.

The S&P 500[®] Index is capitalization-weighted index of 500 stocks. The S&P 500 Index is designed to measure performance of the broad domestic economy through changes in the aggregate market value of 500 stocks representing all major industries.

The Russell 1000[®] Value Index is a market capitalization-weighted index of value-oriented stocks that measures the performance of those Russell 1000[®] companies with lower price-to-book ratios and lower forecasted growth values.

Unlike the Fund, the Indices are unmanaged, are not available for investment, and do not incur expenses.
